

SUFFRAGETTES ON TRIAL IN ENGLAND

Charged With Conspiracy Under the Malicious Damage to Property Act.

LEADERS WEAR MOURNING FOR MISS EMILY DAVISON

Honor Memory of Militant Fatally Hurt at Race Course—"Arson Squads" Again Active.

EMILY WILDING DAVISON.

LONDON, June 8.—The trial of the suffragette leaders charged with conspiracy under the malicious damage to property act began today at the central criminal court, Old Bailey. The accused included Miss Harriet Court, Miss Agnes Lane, Miss Rachel Barrett, Miss Beatrice Saunders, Miss Annie Kenney, Miss Laura Lennox and Edna Clayton, the chemist alleged to have acted as adviser to the suffragettes in their campaign.

"General" Mrs. Flora Drummond, who was originally charged with the same offense, did not appear, her case having been postponed owing to her illness. Little interest was shown by the general public in the trial. There were a few women spectators in court, who, like the prisoners, wore a black band on their left arm as a sign of mourning for Miss Emily Wilding Davison, the militant suffragette who died yesterday from injuries received at the Epsom race course.

Big Array of Counsel.

There was a big array of counsel when the case opened. Sir John A. Simon, the solicitor general, was the leading barrister on behalf of the government. The "arson squads" of the militant suffragettes have once more become very active. Besides the seventy-thousand-dollar fine at the Epsom race course last night they destroyed this morning a house on the River Lea and also the grandstand at the North Milesex cricket ground.

Death of Miss Davison.

Emily Wilding Davison, the third martyr to the militant efforts of women to obtain the suffrage, died yesterday from a fracture of the skull as the result of a fall from the king's horse, Anmer, during the running of the Derby last Wednesday.

A few moments before her death two comrades draped the screen surrounding the not with the fateful colors of the Women's Social and Political Union, which she wore when she made her attempt to interfere with the great chariot race.

Miss Davison had evidently expected to gain the track at Tattenham Corner in time to intercept and scatter the field, but was detained a moment by a spectator who tried to restrain her. She reached the track in time to be struck by the king's horse, who was running in the rack. The woman turned a complete somersault, coming down across the legs of John Jones, who had been left prone and unconscious after the fall of his mount. She struck on her head and was killed.

Offers Map of Gettysburg.

Geological Survey Makes Price Concession to Mark Anniversary.

In recognition of the coming great celebration on the battlefield of Gettysburg, the United States geological survey announced today that it had produced a map of the battlefield which it was prepared to sell to the public at half price. The concession, it is announced, was made by special authority granted by Secretary Lane of the Interior Department.

The map shows the territory, about 95 square miles, over which the federal and Confederate forces fought. It is based on the scale of one mile to the inch and the routes taken by Gen. Lee, Meade and their subordinates are clearly shown.

"Such a map," says the announcement of the survey, "would have been of great value to the military and naval departments of the Union and the Confederacy during the battle of Gettysburg, where the fate of the nation was decided."

Miss Davison was noted for her daring feats in behalf of suffrage. One of her earliest exploits was to barricade herself in a cell and she was subdued only with the aid of a fire hose. On another occasion she sat herself down in another cell and was seriously injured.

She was one of the most persistent invaders of the House of Commons, which she gained at one time by way of a lawsuit. Her last exploit before the fatal Epsom incident was the assault on a Baptist clergyman in the belief that he was Chancellor Lloyd George.

Striking Contrast to Meetings.

In striking contrast to the meetings of the constitutional society in Hyde Park, which met with only mild hecklers, attempts of the W. S. P. U. speakers to

DISTRICT POLICE

Highly Praised

Good as Any in World, Speaker Clark and Commissioner Johnston Say.

LATTER DEPLORES DEFICIT EXISTING IN PENSION FUND

President Sylvester Gives His Annual Report—Delegates and Wives Received at White House.

Important Offices Filled at Last Business Session This Morning.

Some of the most important offices in the denomination were filled in the last business sessions of the world's conference of the Seventh-day Adventists, which opened at the Hotel Raleigh in Washington, D. C., yesterday afternoon and this morning, before the conference finally adjourned. This morning hundreds of the campers left their homes in various parts of the country, and many started on their long journeys to far-off lands. The camp is being taken down by a corps of helpers, made up of clergymen and students of the Foreign Missionary Seminary.

One of the last actions taken by the conference involved a change in the pastorate of the Memorial Seventh-day Adventist Church, at 12th and M streets, northwest. This was the transfer of Elder A. J. Breed, the present pastor of the church, to become pastor of one of the Philadelphia Seventh-day Adventist churches.

When the Asiatic division was organized some days ago, Elder C. C. Porter, formerly of the South African Union Conference, was elected as its president. This left the South African Union Conference without a president. At yesterday's session Elder W. B. White of South Lancaster, Mass., was elected president of the South African Union Conference, with headquarters at Cape Town.

Sent as Assistant.

It was also voted to send to South Africa as the assistant of Elder White, Elder O. K. Butler of St. John, N. B., the president of the Maritime Conference. This left a vacancy in the office of president of the Maritime Conference, which was also filled at yesterday's session by the election of Elder J. H. Jones of Jamaica, the president of the West Indian Union Conference.

The vacancy thus made in the presidency of the West Indian Union Conference was filled by action of the delegates in electing Elder J. H. Jones of Jamaica, the president of the West Indian Union Conference.

Other changes which were made in the laboring force at the conference were: The election of Elder J. H. Jones of Jamaica, the president of the West Indian Union Conference; the election of Elder J. H. Jones of Jamaica, the president of the West Indian Union Conference; the election of Elder J. H. Jones of Jamaica, the president of the West Indian Union Conference.

General Mrs. Flora Drummond, who was originally charged with the same offense, did not appear, her case having been postponed owing to her illness. Little interest was shown by the general public in the trial. There were a few women spectators in court, who, like the prisoners, wore a black band on their left arm as a sign of mourning for Miss Emily Wilding Davison, the militant suffragette who died yesterday from injuries received at the Epsom race course.

There was a big array of counsel when the case opened. Sir John A. Simon, the solicitor general, was the leading barrister on behalf of the government. The "arson squads" of the militant suffragettes have once more become very active. Besides the seventy-thousand-dollar fine at the Epsom race course last night they destroyed this morning a house on the River Lea and also the grandstand at the North Milesex cricket ground.

Emily Wilding Davison, the third martyr to the militant efforts of women to obtain the suffrage, died yesterday from a fracture of the skull as the result of a fall from the king's horse, Anmer, during the running of the Derby last Wednesday.

A few moments before her death two comrades draped the screen surrounding the not with the fateful colors of the Women's Social and Political Union, which she wore when she made her attempt to interfere with the great chariot race.

Miss Davison had evidently expected to gain the track at Tattenham Corner in time to intercept and scatter the field, but was detained a moment by a spectator who tried to restrain her. She reached the track in time to be struck by the king's horse, who was running in the rack. The woman turned a complete somersault, coming down across the legs of John Jones, who had been left prone and unconscious after the fall of his mount. She struck on her head and was killed.

She was one of the most persistent invaders of the House of Commons, which she gained at one time by way of a lawsuit. Her last exploit before the fatal Epsom incident was the assault on a Baptist clergyman in the belief that he was Chancellor Lloyd George.

The impact will be felt tomorrow. The funeral will take place in London among members of the Woman's Political and Social Union will take a prominent part.

Speaking with great emotion at a Hyde Park meeting yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Despard said she hoped that the case of Miss Davison would kindle a flame in the souls of men which would end the present awful situation.

Miss McDougall, another suffragette leader, said Miss Davison had given her life to call attention to the wrongs of women. She knew Miss Davison had always held the view that a woman's life would have to be sacrificed before the women of this country would get justice.

Striking Contrast to Meetings.

In striking contrast to the meetings of the constitutional society in Hyde Park, which met with only mild hecklers, attempts of the W. S. P. U. speakers to

There was a big array of counsel when the case opened. Sir John A. Simon, the solicitor general, was the leading barrister on behalf of the government. The "arson squads" of the militant suffragettes have once more become very active. Besides the seventy-thousand-dollar fine at the Epsom race course last night they destroyed this morning a house on the River Lea and also the grandstand at the North Milesex cricket ground.

Emily Wilding Davison, the third martyr to the militant efforts of women to obtain the suffrage, died yesterday from a fracture of the skull as the result of a fall from the king's horse, Anmer, during the running of the Derby last Wednesday.

A few moments before her death two comrades draped the screen surrounding the not with the fateful colors of the Women's Social and Political Union, which she wore when she made her attempt to interfere with the great chariot race.

Miss Davison had evidently expected to gain the track at Tattenham Corner in time to intercept and scatter the field, but was detained a moment by a spectator who tried to restrain her. She reached the track in time to be struck by the king's horse, who was running in the rack. The woman turned a complete somersault, coming down across the legs of John Jones, who had been left prone and unconscious after the fall of his mount. She struck on her head and was killed.

She was one of the most persistent invaders of the House of Commons, which she gained at one time by way of a lawsuit. Her last exploit before the fatal Epsom incident was the assault on a Baptist clergyman in the belief that he was Chancellor Lloyd George.

The impact will be felt tomorrow. The funeral will take place in London among members of the Woman's Political and Social Union will take a prominent part.

Speaking with great emotion at a Hyde Park meeting yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Despard said she hoped that the case of Miss Davison would kindle a flame in the souls of men which would end the present awful situation.

Miss McDougall, another suffragette leader, said Miss Davison had given her life to call attention to the wrongs of women. She knew Miss Davison had always held the view that a woman's life would have to be sacrificed before the women of this country would get justice.

Striking Contrast to Meetings.

In striking contrast to the meetings of the constitutional society in Hyde Park, which met with only mild hecklers, attempts of the W. S. P. U. speakers to

POICE CHIEFS HERE FOR CONFERENCE

Good as Any in World, Speaker Clark and Commissioner Johnston Say.

LATTER DEPLORES DEFICIT EXISTING IN PENSION FUND

President Sylvester Gives His Annual Report—Delegates and Wives Received at White House.

Important Offices Filled at Last Business Session This Morning.

Some of the most important offices in the denomination were filled in the last business sessions of the world's conference of the Seventh-day Adventists, which opened at the Hotel Raleigh in Washington, D. C., yesterday afternoon and this morning, before the conference finally adjourned. This morning hundreds of the campers left their homes in various parts of the country, and many started on their long journeys to far-off lands. The camp is being taken down by a corps of helpers, made up of clergymen and students of the Foreign Missionary Seminary.

One of the last actions taken by the conference involved a change in the pastorate of the Memorial Seventh-day Adventist Church, at 12th and M streets, northwest. This was the transfer of Elder A. J. Breed, the present pastor of the church, to become pastor of one of the Philadelphia Seventh-day Adventist churches.

When the Asiatic division was organized some days ago, Elder C. C. Porter, formerly of the South African Union Conference, was elected as its president. This left the South African Union Conference without a president. At yesterday's session Elder W. B. White of South Lancaster, Mass., was elected president of the South African Union Conference, with headquarters at Cape Town.

Sent as Assistant.

It was also voted to send to South Africa as the assistant of Elder White, Elder O. K. Butler of St. John, N. B., the president of the Maritime Conference. This left a vacancy in the office of president of the Maritime Conference, which was also filled at yesterday's session by the election of Elder J. H. Jones of Jamaica, the president of the West Indian Union Conference.

The vacancy thus made in the presidency of the West Indian Union Conference was filled by action of the delegates in electing Elder J. H. Jones of Jamaica, the president of the West Indian Union Conference.

Other changes which were made in the laboring force at the conference were: The election of Elder J. H. Jones of Jamaica, the president of the West Indian Union Conference; the election of Elder J. H. Jones of Jamaica, the president of the West Indian Union Conference; the election of Elder J. H. Jones of Jamaica, the president of the West Indian Union Conference.

General Mrs. Flora Drummond, who was originally charged with the same offense, did not appear, her case having been postponed owing to her illness. Little interest was shown by the general public in the trial. There were a few women spectators in court, who, like the prisoners, wore a black band on their left arm as a sign of mourning for Miss Emily Wilding Davison, the militant suffragette who died yesterday from injuries received at the Epsom race course.

There was a big array of counsel when the case opened. Sir John A. Simon, the solicitor general, was the leading barrister on behalf of the government. The "arson squads" of the militant suffragettes have once more become very active. Besides the seventy-thousand-dollar fine at the Epsom race course last night they destroyed this morning a house on the River Lea and also the grandstand at the North Milesex cricket ground.

Emily Wilding Davison, the third martyr to the militant efforts of women to obtain the suffrage, died yesterday from a fracture of the skull as the result of a fall from the king's horse, Anmer, during the running of the Derby last Wednesday.

A few moments before her death two comrades draped the screen surrounding the not with the fateful colors of the Women's Social and Political Union, which she wore when she made her attempt to interfere with the great chariot race.

Miss Davison had evidently expected to gain the track at Tattenham Corner in time to intercept and scatter the field, but was detained a moment by a spectator who tried to restrain her. She reached the track in time to be struck by the king's horse, who was running in the rack. The woman turned a complete somersault, coming down across the legs of John Jones, who had been left prone and unconscious after the fall of his mount. She struck on her head and was killed.

She was one of the most persistent invaders of the House of Commons, which she gained at one time by way of a lawsuit. Her last exploit before the fatal Epsom incident was the assault on a Baptist clergyman in the belief that he was Chancellor Lloyd George.

The impact will be felt tomorrow. The funeral will take place in London among members of the Woman's Political and Social Union will take a prominent part.

Speaking with great emotion at a Hyde Park meeting yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Despard said she hoped that the case of Miss Davison would kindle a flame in the souls of men which would end the present awful situation.

Miss McDougall, another suffragette leader, said Miss Davison had given her life to call attention to the wrongs of women. She knew Miss Davison had always held the view that a woman's life would have to be sacrificed before the women of this country would get justice.

Striking Contrast to Meetings.

In striking contrast to the meetings of the constitutional society in Hyde Park, which met with only mild hecklers, attempts of the W. S. P. U. speakers to

There was a big array of counsel when the case opened. Sir John A. Simon, the solicitor general, was the leading barrister on behalf of the government. The "arson squads" of the militant suffragettes have once more become very active. Besides the seventy-thousand-dollar fine at the Epsom race course last night they destroyed this morning a house on the River Lea and also the grandstand at the North Milesex cricket ground.

Emily Wilding Davison, the third martyr to the militant efforts of women to obtain the suffrage, died yesterday from a fracture of the skull as the result of a fall from the king's horse, Anmer, during the running of the Derby last Wednesday.

A few moments before her death two comrades draped the screen surrounding the not with the fateful colors of the Women's Social and Political Union, which she wore when she made her attempt to interfere with the great chariot race.

Miss Davison had evidently expected to gain the track at Tattenham Corner in time to intercept and scatter the field, but was detained a moment by a spectator who tried to restrain her. She reached the track in time to be struck by the king's horse, who was running in the rack. The woman turned a complete somersault, coming down across the legs of John Jones, who had been left prone and unconscious after the fall of his mount. She struck on her head and was killed.

She was one of the most persistent invaders of the House of Commons, which she gained at one time by way of a lawsuit. Her last exploit before the fatal Epsom incident was the assault on a Baptist clergyman in the belief that he was Chancellor Lloyd George.

The impact will be felt tomorrow. The funeral will take place in London among members of the Woman's Political and Social Union will take a prominent part.

Speaking with great emotion at a Hyde Park meeting yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Despard said she hoped that the case of Miss Davison would kindle a flame in the souls of men which would end the present awful situation.

Miss McDougall, another suffragette leader, said Miss Davison had given her life to call attention to the wrongs of women. She knew Miss Davison had always held the view that a woman's life would have to be sacrificed before the women of this country would get justice.

Striking Contrast to Meetings.

In striking contrast to the meetings of the constitutional society in Hyde Park, which met with only mild hecklers, attempts of the W. S. P. U. speakers to

There was a big array of counsel when the case opened. Sir John A. Simon, the solicitor general, was the leading barrister on behalf of the government. The "arson squads" of the militant suffragettes have once more become very active. Besides the seventy-thousand-dollar fine at the Epsom race course last night they destroyed this morning a house on the River Lea and also the grandstand at the North Milesex cricket ground.

POICE CHIEFS HERE FOR CONFERENCE

Good as Any in World, Speaker Clark and Commissioner Johnston Say.

LATTER DEPLORES DEFICIT EXISTING IN PENSION FUND

President Sylvester Gives His Annual Report—Delegates and Wives Received at White House.

Important Offices Filled at Last Business Session This Morning.

Some of the most important offices in the denomination were filled in the last business sessions of the world's conference of the Seventh-day Adventists, which opened at the Hotel Raleigh in Washington, D. C., yesterday afternoon and this morning, before the conference finally adjourned. This morning hundreds of the campers left their homes in various parts of the country, and many started on their long journeys to far-off lands. The camp is being taken down by a corps of helpers, made up of clergymen and students of the Foreign Missionary Seminary.

One of the last actions taken by the conference involved a change in the pastorate of the Memorial Seventh-day Adventist Church, at 12th and M streets, northwest. This was the transfer of Elder A. J. Breed, the present pastor of the church, to become pastor of one of the Philadelphia Seventh-day Adventist churches.

When the Asiatic division was organized some days ago, Elder C. C. Porter, formerly of the South African Union Conference, was elected as its president. This left the South African Union Conference without a president. At yesterday's session Elder W. B. White of South Lancaster, Mass., was elected president of the South African Union Conference, with headquarters at Cape Town.

Sent as Assistant.

It was also voted to send to South Africa as the assistant of Elder White, Elder O. K. Butler of St. John, N. B., the president of the Maritime Conference. This left a vacancy in the office of president of the Maritime Conference, which was also filled at yesterday's session by the election of Elder J. H. Jones of Jamaica, the president of the West Indian Union Conference.

The vacancy thus made in the presidency of the West Indian Union Conference was filled by action of the delegates in electing Elder J. H. Jones of Jamaica, the president of the West Indian Union Conference.

Other changes which were made in the laboring force at the conference were: The election of Elder J. H. Jones of Jamaica, the president of the West Indian Union Conference; the election of Elder J. H. Jones of Jamaica, the president of the West Indian Union Conference; the election of Elder J. H. Jones of Jamaica, the president of the West Indian Union Conference.

General Mrs. Flora Drummond, who was originally charged with the same offense, did not appear, her case having been postponed owing to her illness. Little interest was shown by the general public in the trial. There were a few women spectators in court, who, like the prisoners, wore a black band on their left arm as a sign of mourning for Miss Emily Wilding Davison, the militant suffragette who died yesterday from injuries received at the Epsom race course.

There was a big array of counsel when the case opened. Sir John A. Simon, the solicitor general, was the leading barrister on behalf of the government. The "arson squads" of the militant suffragettes have once more become very active. Besides the seventy-thousand-dollar fine at the Epsom race course last night they destroyed this morning a house on the River Lea and also the grandstand at the North Milesex cricket ground.

Emily Wilding Davison, the third martyr to the militant efforts of women to obtain the suffrage, died yesterday from a fracture of the skull as the result of a fall from the king's horse, Anmer, during the running of the Derby last Wednesday.

A few moments before her death two comrades draped the screen surrounding the not with the fateful colors of the Women's Social and Political Union, which she wore when she made her attempt to interfere with the great chariot race.

Miss Davison had evidently expected to gain the track at Tattenham Corner in time to intercept and scatter the field, but was detained a moment by a spectator who tried to restrain her. She reached the track in time to be struck by the king's horse, who was running in the rack. The woman turned a complete somersault, coming down across the legs of John Jones, who had been left prone and unconscious after the fall of his mount. She struck on her head and was killed.

She was one of the most persistent invaders of the House of Commons, which she gained at one time by way of a lawsuit. Her last exploit before the fatal Epsom incident was the assault on a Baptist clergyman in the belief that he was Chancellor Lloyd George.

The impact will be felt tomorrow. The funeral will take place in London among members of the Woman's Political and Social Union will take a prominent part.

Speaking with great emotion at a Hyde Park meeting yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Despard said she hoped that the case of Miss Davison would kindle a flame in the souls of men which would end the present awful situation.

Miss McDougall, another suffragette leader, said Miss Davison had given her life to call attention to the wrongs of women. She knew Miss Davison had always held the view that a woman's life would have to be sacrificed before the women of this country would get justice.

Striking Contrast to Meetings.

In striking contrast to the meetings of the constitutional society in Hyde Park, which met with only mild hecklers, attempts of the W. S. P. U. speakers to

There was a big array of counsel when the case opened. Sir John A. Simon, the solicitor general, was the leading barrister on behalf of the government. The "arson squads" of the militant suffragettes have once more become very active. Besides the seventy-thousand-dollar fine at the Epsom race course last night they destroyed this morning a house on the River Lea and also the grandstand at the North Milesex cricket ground.

Emily Wilding Davison, the third martyr to the militant efforts of women to obtain the suffrage, died yesterday from a fracture of the skull as the result of a fall from the king's horse, Anmer, during the running of the Derby last Wednesday.

A few moments before her death two comrades draped the screen surrounding the not with the fateful colors of the Women's Social and Political Union, which she wore when she made her attempt to interfere with the great chariot race.

Miss Davison had evidently expected to gain the track at Tattenham Corner in time to intercept and scatter the field, but was detained a moment by a spectator who tried to restrain her. She reached the track in time to be struck by the king's horse, who was running in the rack. The woman turned a complete somersault, coming down across the legs of John Jones, who had been left prone and unconscious after the fall of his mount. She struck on her head and was killed.

She was one of the most persistent invaders of the House of Commons, which she gained at one time by way of a lawsuit. Her last exploit before the fatal Epsom incident was the assault on a Baptist clergyman in the belief that he was Chancellor Lloyd George.

The impact will be felt tomorrow. The funeral will take place in London among members of the Woman's Political and Social Union will take a prominent part.

Speaking with great emotion at a Hyde Park meeting yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Despard said she hoped that the case of Miss Davison would kindle a flame in the souls of men which would end the present awful situation.

Miss McDougall, another suffragette leader, said Miss Davison had given her life to call attention to the wrongs of women. She knew Miss Davison had always held the view that a woman's life would have to be sacrificed before the women of this country would get justice.

Striking Contrast to Meetings.

In striking contrast to the meetings of the constitutional society in Hyde Park, which met with only mild hecklers, attempts of the W. S. P. U. speakers to

There was a big array of counsel when the case opened. Sir John A. Simon, the solicitor general, was the leading barrister on behalf of the government. The "arson squads" of the militant suffragettes have once more become very active. Besides the seventy-thousand-dollar fine at the Epsom race course last night they destroyed this morning a house on the River Lea and also the grandstand at the North Milesex cricket ground.

YOUNG LAWYERS

Graduates of Georgetown University to Receive Diplomas This Afternoon.

PRIZES FOR EXCELLENCE WILL ALSO BE AWARDED

Exercises to Be Held at 4 O'Clock at Poli's Theater—Address by Senator Walsh.

Graduates of the law school of Georgetown University will receive their diplomas at exercises to be held this afternoon in Poli's Theater.

The opening address and the conferring of degrees are to be made by Hon. Alphonso J. Donlon, S. J., president of the university. Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana is to deliver the address to the graduates. Associate Justice Ashmun B. Phelps of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia will receive the prizes. Edson B. Brown of the class of 1912 is to sing the class song.

A number of prizes for excellence in class standing, debating and essays are to be awarded to members of the class. The faculty prize of $50 offered to the student in the first-year class maintaining the best average in recitation and examinations during the year, is awarded to Ben A. Matthews of Georgia, general average 90.34. In recitation, he has his class during his first and second years, his average for those years being 90.34. In recitation, he has his class during his first and second years, his average for those years being 90.34.

The faculty prize of $50 offered to the student in the second-year class maintaining the best average in recitation and examinations during the year, is awarded to Frank J. Keely of Indiana, general average 90.26.

The faculty prize of $25 offered to the student in the third-year class maintaining the best average in recitation and examinations during the year, is awarded to Frederick R. Tibbs of Tennessee, general average 89.26.

The faculty prize of $50 offered to the student in the first-year class maintaining the best average in recitation and examinations during the year, is awarded to John D. Foley of North Carolina, general average 90.34.

The faculty prize of $25 offered to the student in the second-year class maintaining the best average in recitation and examinations during the year, is awarded to John D. Foley of North Carolina, general average 90.34.

The faculty prize of $50 offered to the student in the third-year class maintaining the best average in recitation and examinations during the year, is awarded to John D. Foley of North Carolina, general average 90.34.

The faculty prize of $25 offered to the student in the first-year class maintaining the best average in recitation and examinations during the year, is awarded to John D. Foley of North Carolina, general average 90.34.

The faculty prize of $50 offered to the student in the second-year class maintaining the best average in recitation and examinations during the year, is awarded to John D. Foley of North Carolina, general average 90.34.

The faculty prize of $25 offered to the student in the third-year class maintaining the best average in recitation and examinations during the year, is awarded to John D. Foley of North Carolina, general average 90.34.

The faculty prize of $50 offered to the student in the first-year class maintaining the best average in recitation and examinations during the year, is awarded to John D. Foley of North Carolina, general average 90.34.

The faculty prize of $25 offered to the student in the second-year class maintaining the best average in recitation and examinations during the year, is awarded to John D. Foley of North Carolina, general average 90.34.

The faculty prize of $50 offered to the student in the third-year class maintaining the best average in recitation and examinations during the year, is awarded to John D. Foley of North Carolina, general average 90.34.

The faculty prize of $25 offered to the student in the first-year class maintaining the best average in recitation and examinations during the year, is awarded to John D. Foley of North Carolina, general average 90.34.

The faculty prize of $50 offered to the student in the second-year class maintaining the best average in recitation and examinations during the year, is awarded to John D. Foley of North Carolina, general average 90.34.

The faculty prize of $25 offered to the student in the third-year class maintaining the best average in recitation and examinations during the year, is awarded to John D. Foley of North Carolina, general average 90.34.

The faculty prize of